Outdoor power waterproof shelter

Overview

What is a generator shelter?

Most shelters use weatherproof material to protect your generator from snow, wind, rain and even heat. The great thing about a generator shelter is that it also protects your generator from pests like rats or squirrels that may chew the wires or crawl inside the exhaust on your generator.

Why do you need a portable generator shelter?

Rain, snow, and other moisture causing elements will destroy your generator. The portable shelter exists to keep it out of the elements and, ultimately, prolong the life of your generator while also being the safer option. Most shelters use weatherproof material to protect your generator from snow, wind, rain and even heat.

How do I choose a portable generator shelter?

Here are some quick tips to help you decide on a portable generator shelter: Make sure to add space on the side of your generator inside the shelter Figure out how long it takes to assemble and disassemble the shelter Find out the maximum and minimum temperature ratings for the shelter.

Are portable generator shelters a one-size-fits-all option?

There is no one-size-fits-all option with portable generator shelters, so you must keep your own interest in mind and think about the features that matter most to you. There are a few different types of portable generator shelters. The kind you choose ultimately impacts how easy it will be to move the shelter around when you need it.
